Chemical Products

“A good quality raw material always produces a better product.”

Organic Chemicals

Any of the several chemical compounds in which one or more carbon atoms are covalently connected to atoms of other elements, most frequently hydrogen, oxygen, or nitrogen, is referred to as an organic compound. Carbides, carbonates, and cyanides are among the few carbon-containing substances that aren't categorized as organic. We will support anything in the organic chemical industry because it is a fundamental necessity of different chemical businesses.

Inorganic Chemicals

The chemical sector that creates inorganic goods is the main topic of discussion when discussing industrial inorganic compounds. On a somewhat limited scale, it is utilized to manufacture highly pure minerals. Keep in mind that there are various sections of the chemical industry that create industrial quantities of inorganic goods, and we always assist in your purchases.

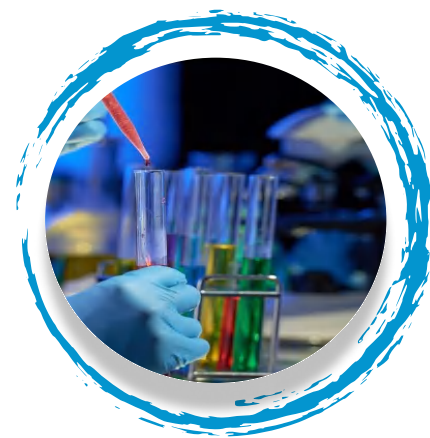

APIs

We are very committed to offering a wide range of active pharmaceutical ingredients (APIs) used in a complete pharmaceutical product, intended to provide either pharmacological activity or direct diagnostic action. Active Pharmaceutical Ingredients (APIs) come in many varieties.

Speciality Chemicals

Specialty chemicals are used in many industries and applications. As an exporter of specialty chemicals, MII EXPORT's focus on research and innovation allows it to identify new opportunities and help customers across multiple sectors and industries gain a competitive edge. Recent and upcoming developments include specialty chemicals for fast-moving industries such as electronics, functional monomers and flame retardants for a variety of applications.
